

Life

Life has been full of waiting lately.
Why am I in such a hurry?
Can't I slow down and enjoy the present?
This is a change I need to make
I need to open my eyes and heart to each day and appreciate the people and great things happening around me
Allowing the little things in life to stress me out
Always looking to be in the next phase of life
I want my house sold
I want to be living in a newer, larger home
Shouldn't I be happy I have a house to live in?
The grass needs to be cut.
Shouldn't I be thankful I have a lawn to mow?

Life has been full of waiting lately.
Why can't that number in our savings account be higher?
Budgeting and working extra jobs....what gives?
Never felt more impatient in my life.
Does this mean I'm unhappy with the present or excited about my future?

Life has been full of waiting lately.
Another full year of medication before trying again
Baby names, furniture, and nursery colors have been chosen
But, I'm still waiting...
This disease found a home in my body
I wait to be taken off the toxic drugs and steroids that bloat my body
Shouldn't I be overjoyed for my job that arms me with health insurance?
I need to be thankful that I live near the Cleveland Clinic.
This could be much worse.

Life has been full of waiting lately.
Life has taught me to be patient, work hard, and to be thankful.
